WHO ARE WE?

Dorsey & Whitney LLP was established in 1912 in Minneapolis, Minnesota, at the request of a client that is still a valued client today. We believe the longevity of our client relationships is something that distinguishes us and that speaks to the competitive edge we deliver to our clients. Today, Dorsey lawyers practice in locations in the United States, Canada, Europe and the Asia-Pacific region and serve clients all around the world.

The London office is Dorsey's European hub and provides a full-service practice to clients. Its lawyers are consistently ranked by Chambers UK and the Legal 500. Dorsey London has been rated as a 2026 "Excellent Performer" for both "Supervision and Contact Time" and "Training and Development" by Chambers Student. A day in the life of a Dorsey trainee

TRAINEE PROFILE

Name: Inês Rodrigues dos Santos

About the trainee: Inês is currently in her third seat at Dorsey. Inês studied Law at University of York and completed the LPC at University of Law. Prior to starting her Training Contract at Dorsey, Inês worked as a paralegal in Intellectual Property for 2.5 years at another US firm in London.

A TYPICAL DAY

Seat at time of writing: Corporate

8:00am: We are in a busy period coming up to signing a transaction. I therefore start my day by quickly checking my emails before I make my way to the office, in case I need to attend to anything urgent that has come in overnight. If nothing requires immediate attention, I quickly flag the tasks that I need to perform once I am in the office.

9:30am: I arrive at the office and have a quick catch up with my supervisor, during which we discuss which tasks should be prioritised. I then begin my first task of the day: drafting board minutes, which I aim to circulate to my supervisor before lunch.

11:00am: Time for a matcha! I check with my fellow trainees and other colleagues to see who wants to come to the nearest cafe.

1:30pm: I circulate the draft board minutes to my supervisor before going for a walk and grabbing lunch with a colleague. Then I return to my desk.

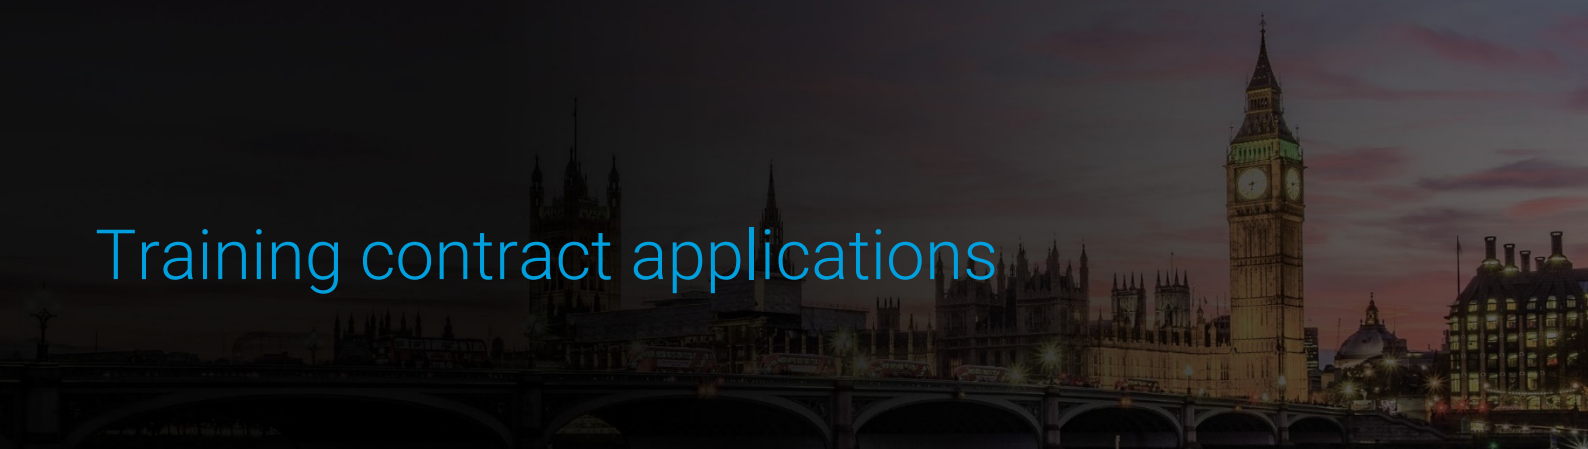

2:30pm: I am back at my desk and start my second main task for the day, which is to update a due diligence report following a call with the client yesterday evening. Alongside this, I liaise with the litigation team to confirm the status of litigation searches for the target company so that I can add these to the report.

4:00pm: Time for a tea break! I meet with some of the other trainees in the kitchen for a quick break.

4:15pm: I head back to my desk after receiving a notification of an email on my work phone with a short last-minute research point. The query related to the sale of shares in an AIM listed company.

5:00pm: I finish my research and pull together a short note summarising the position, including the key statutory provisions and case law, before sending it to my supervisor. I stay around for a few minutes in case any follow up questions arise, and check if there's anything else I can help with today. After my supervisor confirms that there is nothing else to be done this evening, I update my to do list for the next day and log off.
