

Finch publicly stated that the DOJ is “looking at common ownership and interlocking directorate issues more closely” and is “currently thinking about” whether Section 8 could apply to corporate forms that did not exist when the Clayton Act was passed in 1914, such as private equity firms or LLCs that may have board appointment rights.<sup>11</sup>

---

About Dorsey & Whitney LLP

Clients have relied on Dorsey since 1912 as a valued business partner. With locations across the United States and in Canada, Europe and the Asia-Pacific region, Dorsey provides an integrated, proactive approach to its clients' legal and business needs. Dorsey represents a number of the world's most successful companies from a wide range of industries, including leaders in the banking, development & infrastructure, energy & natural resources, food, beverage & agribusiness, healthcare, and technology industry groups, as well as major non-profit and government entities.

©2019 Dorsey & Whitney LLP. This article is intended for general information purposes only and should not be construed as legal advice or legal opinions on any specific facts or circumstances. An attorney-client relationship is not created or continued by reading this article. Members of the Dorsey & Whitney LLP group issuing this communication will be pleased to provide further information regarding the matters discussed therein.

---

<sup>11</sup> See Andrew C. Finch, Concentrating on Competition: An Antitrust Perspective on Platforms and Industry Consolidation, at 13–14, presented at Capitol Forum’s Fifth Annual Tech, Media & Telecom Competition Conference (December 13, 2018).